Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 17 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy, some patchy drizzle in the far west.

Today:
A cloudy but mainly dry day. Low cloud will thicken across the Western Isles and far northwest in the afternoon, perhaps giving a few spots of patchy light drizzle. Light northwest winds. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Low cloud, mist and fog will affect the Hebrides and west coast this evening, spreading slightly inland across Sutherland overnight, giving patchy drizzle. Drier with higher cloud bases further east. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Thursday:
Low cloud with patchy drizzle and some mist or fog patches near the north and west coast. Drier elsewhere, some bright spells across Lochaber and Speyside. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
A mostly cloudy few days. Largely dry, but some patchy light drizzle is likely to affect north and west coasts at times. Light north becoming west winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.